From the Town Manager's Office

The Town of Tolland has been significantly impacted by the proposals contained in the Governor's budget. Due to a combination of lost State revenue and new expenditures we have been negatively impacted by almost $7 million. It would require an over 6 mill increase just to offset that type of revenue loss. In my proposed budget I have offered the Town Council a variety of options to address the uncertainties of the State budget at this point in our budget process.

Details of my recommended budget and the budget subsequently adopted by the Town Council can be found on the Town's website at www.tolland.org. The Council Chair, Rick Field, will present the Council's budget on April 20, 2017 at 7:30 pm in the Tolland High School Auditorium. If you are unable to attend an evening meeting, there will be another presentation on April 24, 2017 at 12:30 pm at the Tolland Senior Center. At either of these meetings, you will be able to give your opinion on the status of the budget prior to our budget referendum which is held on May 2, 2017. Should you at any time have questions on the budget, please do not hesitate to contact me at swerbner@tolland.org.

Budget Referenda

Starting May 2, 2017, all BUDGET REFERENDA will be held in the Program Room of the Tolland Public Library. The polls will be open from 6:00 am until 8:00 pm.

Tolland Public Library Foundation News

Bridging the Gap: Planning for Later Life talk set for April 26. The Tolland Public Library Foundation will sponsor a free talk April 26 by a financial planner who will discuss "Bridging the Gap: Planning for Later Life."

Craig Breitsprecher, a financial advisor and registered representative of Valark Financial Services in Hartford, will present an informative, one-hour presentation on planning in the areas of housing, transportation, health care and financial matters. The seminar will be invaluable for attendees looking to better care for an aging parent or to proactively plan for their own later life. Over the past 100 years, Americans have seen an increase in life expectancy, changing retirement from a few years to a few decades in some cases. Breitsprecher says that has resulted in a greater need for cooperation, planning and transparency across generations to ensure dignity throughout a person's retirement.

The talk will not include a sales pitch. Breitsprecher has been a frequent visitor to the library as he has given popular talks on "How to Pay for College" that have been sponsored by the Foundation. The talk will be held at 6:30 pm at Tolland Public Library at 21 Tolland Green in Tolland. Registration is required. To register, call the library at 860-871-3620.

The event is free, but registration is required. To register, call the library at 860-871-3620.

It will be held from 6:30 pm to 8 pm at the library at 21 Tolland Green. Biedrzycki's program is geared to inspire students in Kindergarten through fifth grade and is technology-based. He will show the children how he creates stories and art on the computer and sometimes revises a story up to 30 times before it is done. Biedrzycki will show how he uses shapes to create a beetle and beetle family and will get the children involved by having them learn about colors, symmetry and horizontal and vertical placement. He will leave a jpg file of the created art for students and parents to print up later. The event is free, but registration is required. To register call the library at 860-871-3620.

Events Presents ~ Skip's Wastewater Services

In March of 1958, Peter Skipper purchased a small septic business from Sherwood Downes of Ellington, CT which consisted of a 1941 Ford Tank Truck and a handful of customers. The new business was called Skips Septic. By 2010, the company had grown to fifteen full time employees, five pump trucks and close to twenty thousand customers. Skips Septic serviced mainly areas in Tolland County and focused on pumping septic tanks and doing a small amount of septic repairs and installations.

Andrew Coleman, grandson of Peter Skipper, became very interested and familiar with the septic business while working for Skips all throughout high school. In 2005, Andrew started his own business; Wastewater Services, Inc. and focused primarily on the installation and repairs of septic systems. By 2012, Wastewater Services had nearly four thousand customers and was installing over one hundred septic systems per year.

In April of 2014, Andrew Coleman and Wastewater Services purchased Skips Septic. The two companies became Skips Wastewater Services. Today, Skips Wastewater Services specializes in septic pumping, inspections, repairs and installations. The company has grown to thirty employees and close to twenty five thousand customers. The company's fleet has expanded to nine pump trucks, eleven service vehicles, five dump trucks, and over a dozen pieces of excavating equipment.

With three full time septic inspectors on staff, Skips Wastewater Services is able to perform over 1600 septic inspections per year. Each septic inspection is a visual inspection and utilizes the use of a fiber-optic camera to visually view the condition of subsurface components. This visual inspection is accompanied by a typed septic report emailed to the customer the next business day.

A failing septic system can be a home owner's worst nightmare. With over 130 septic installs per year, Skips Wastewater Services has the experience and expertise on staff to complete the job on time and correctly. During the installation process, Skips Wastewater Services makes it a priority to have an on-going conversation with the home owner; explaining what will happen each step of the installation.

For all your septic needs, contact Skips Wastewater Services.

Is My Car Seat Still Good After a Crash?

1. The vehicle was able to be driven away from the crash site.
2. The vehicle door nearest the car seat was not damaged.
3. None of the passengers in the vehicle sustained any injuries.
4. If the vehicle has airbags, they did not deploy.
5. There is no visible damage to the car seat. (Including under the padding)

If the crash is minor, you may consider keeping your seat, but remember to ALWAYS follow your manufacturer's instructions first. Some manufacturers state that the seat must not be used after any crash. Some follow the NHTSA guidelines. Others have their own specific guidelines. If you are unsure, contact the manufacturer directly. Lastly, this all applies whether your child was in the seat or not. What is important is that the seat (or base) was in the vehicle during a crash.

The good news is that most insurance companies will reimburse for the loss of a car seat in a crash. Make sure you tell them the make and model when you make your claim. If they are unsure as to whether or not it is covered, show them the manufacturer's instructions that say it must be replaced.

The Tolland Fire Department currently has two certified Child Passenger Safety Technicians (also known as Car Seat Techs) on staff, one of which holds an additional certification for special needs children. They are available by appointment only for inspections or call anytime for advice regarding your child's safety. Call 860-871-3677 extension 2154, please leave your name and the best phone number to contact you and your call will be returned by one of our techs as soon as possible. There is no charge for their services.

The unthinkable has happened. You were traveling along with the kids in the back and got into a car crash. Thankfully, there were no injuries...except for your vehicle. Are the car seats still safe to use? There are no laws regarding when a car seat should be discarded in this scenario, but the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA) has put forth a set of guidelines to follow.

The NHTSA guidelines state that you should replace your car seat following a moderate to severe crash. In order for the crash to be considered minor, ALL of the following must apply:

Vet Corner: Monitor Your Pets Closely for Ticks

Believe it or not, spring will be here soon! However, despite our recent snowfall, all winter we have seen ticks finding their way onto many of our patients. Ticks carry many diseases, primarily Lyme, Anaplasmosis and Ehrlichiosis, which are the ones we most commonly test for. Recently, we have started to diagnose Rocky Mountain Spotted Fever in dogs that have only ever lived in CT! We can almost assume there are other diseases out there that we either don't know about or don't routinely test for. Ticks are literally crawling disease factories!!

Many tick-borne diseases, like Lyme, can be transmitted rather quickly after a tick attaches to your dog. Lyme is an extremely prevalent disease in this area. It is estimated that up to 40% of deer ticks in the northeast carry Lyme disease. The ticks that spread this disease can be very difficult to see on your pet. When ticks are in the nymph stage they can be smaller than the period at the end of this sentence. Imagine trying to find that tiny tick on your fur-covered friend! Even the best tick preventatives cannot definitively protect your pet from exposure to tick-borne diseases. However, the longer the tick is attached, the more likely it is to transmit one of the diseases. Utilizing a quality flea and tick preventative is critical to helping protect your pet from disease. Today there are many different application options (topical, oral, collar) and application frequency (monthly, every 3 months or every 8 months) that work very well. Depending on your pet's lifestyle and exposure, your veterinarian can help you select the product that is best suited for your dog. One additional way to prevent Lyme disease in your dog is with vaccination. The Lyme vaccines are far better than they used to be and are very effective at preventing Lyme disease. If you have your dog properly tested and vaccinated for Lyme disease and they test positive in the future, most vaccine companies will pay for any treatment or medication for your dog.

As one might expect, our barnyard friends are most exposed to these nasty little ticks. We diagnose Lyme and Anaplasmosis in our equine patients very commonly. Unfortunately, we are limited by not having a licensed Lyme vaccine or tick preventative for our horse friends. Uncomplicated cases of Lyme disease are relatively easy to treat in dogs, yet can be very challenging in horses, leading to many persistent and chronic conditions.

Bottom line, monitor your pets closely for ticks and talk to your veterinarian about the best way to protect your animals from deadly diseases!

Animal Control Reminder: Concerning Wildlife

With spring in full swing and summer quickly approaching, the Tolland Animal Control Department would like to remind residents about our local wildlife. Each spring, our department begins to receive an increase in calls regarding concerns of wildlife. It is not uncommon to see a glimpse of a beautiful fox, coyote, bobcat, fisher, or even black bear crossing through your property especially during the early morning or dusk hours. We do receive many calls about fox, and want to remind people that they do enjoy laying out basking in the warmth of the sun or hunting for mice in your stone walls. Lying in the sun helps them dry out their wet coat from the spring rains and helps heal their skin of ailments. Unless the animal is aggressive, collapsing, walking in circles/dizzy, or appears lethargic/sick, there is no need to notify our department. Just enjoy watching the animal from a distance while in its natural habitat.

To deter these animals from being on your property, please be sure to keep all garbage in closed containers, don't put food out in compost piles, put away bird feeders, do not leave pet food outdoors, and do not leave small animals outside unattended. You may hang wind chimes in areas which frequent these animals or bang metal objects from a distance, to frighten them away.

If a resident witnesses any wild animal sick or acting aggressively towards either a human or a companion animal, or if a person or animal makes physical contact with a wild animal, please contact Tolland Animal Control at 860-871-3676.

For more information on wildlife facts, please feel free to visit the Connecticut Department of Energy & Environmental Protection (D.E.E.P.) website at: <http://www.ct.gov/deep/> Click on 'Natural Resources' and then 'Wildlife.'
